8.1 'Nicotine & Tobacco Research' Description

Nicotine & Tobacco Research is the primary research publication of the Society for Research on Nicotine and Tobacco. It is a multi-disciplinary publication dedicated to research on (1) molecular, neurobiological, behavioral, epidemiological, and sociocultural features of tobacco use and nicotine dependence; and (2) the treatment and prevention of tobacco use and dependence for individuals and populations. Papers that are integrative and cross traditional disciplinary boundaries are particularly encouraged. The journal primarily publishes manuscripts and reviews that report evidence-based data and hypotheses that advance our thinking about the etymology, treatment, and prevention of tobacco use worldwide.
